

Tips for Survey Scripts

Client surveys provide valuable information on who enrolls in your program, their service needs, and what their lives are like at the beginning and end of services. So, it is important to get clients to complete each survey! Survey scripts are an important tool for encouraging clients to complete the surveys so you can collect high-quality, consistent data. This tip sheet provides 10 tips for survey scripts and an example script you can adapt for your program. Be sure to include your own scripts in your data collection plan and train your staff on how and when to use them.

Tips

- 1 Thank clients in advance for completing the survey.
- 2 Introduce surveys as a chance for clients to share their experiences, so that the program can identify services to help them and others like them.
- 3 Call the surveys, “surveys.” Never call them tests, exams, assessments, or evaluations.
- 4 Describe how all answers will be kept private, explain any consent information required by your Institutional Review Board (IRB), and provide the Privacy Act Statement.
- 5 Tell clients that they may skip any or all questions but encourage them to answer all the questions.
- 6 Show clients how to use the tablet or computer and how to listen to the questions with earbuds.
- 7 Tailor scripts and the level of instructions to your target population.
- 8 Remind clients to submit their survey on the final screen.
- 9 Ask clients if they have any questions before they begin the survey.
- 10 If you are administering surveys to clients in a group, plan an activity, such as icebreaker questions, to occupy clients as they finish their surveys.
